

CHAPTER 1

Charlie and Willy Wonka were picked up with a helicopter, towards the White House. There were more people with them, but they didn't know each other. There was one of them who got Charlie's attention, as he was looking to everyone very focused on what the others said.

Charlie went to speak to him, as he thought he might be a little bit overwhelmed. However, the conversation was a bit rude, as the stranger was only answering Charlie's questions by nodding or just saying yes or no.

Suddenly, the stranger went to the exit gate, opened it and jumped. Everyone looked surprised. Why on Earth would somebody jump from a helicopter in the middle of nowhere?

What they didn't know was that that stranger, even though he looked like a human, he wasn't one. He was one of the Knids.

CHAPTER 2

When they arrived at the White House, everyone was waiting for them. The President greeted Charlie and Willy Wonka and introduced them to the rest of the people who were there.

They entered to the dining room. It was huge and fully decorated, with an enormous wooden table placed in the middle of it. Dinner was waiting for them, and lots of exquisites were served.

A butler guided Charlie and Wonka to their seats. The President stood up and gave an speech, thanking everybody for coming to the dinner and specially thanking Charlie and Willy Wonka for their good job helping in the space. Both were awarded with the Golden Medal of Bravery, and then started to eat.

A few minutes later, while they were having dinner, Charlie noticed a big mass of people outside the White House. Who were them? and what were they doing there?

CHAPTER 3

Everyone who was having dinner went outside to check out what was really happening. Suddenly, all those who had just appeared, turn into their real bodies: they all were the Knids.

As Charlie saw them, he realized that something bad was going to happen. It was not the first time they happened to meet, and they hadn't given their best face in the first occasion. Charlie decided to go and speak to them before anyone else, as he thought it might be better speaking himself than letting the President do it, as he didn't know anything about the Knids.

-What are you doing here? You were not invited to the Dinner, were you?-asked Charlie.

-We are here to demand what is ours. We want the Earth for us-answered one of them.

-You will never get the Earth, we will fight if it is necessary-said Willy Wonka.

The knids spoke to each other. They knew they couldn't win a fight in that moment, but they would be able to win if they had they Oompa-Loompas and the Chocolate Factory for them.

-If you give us the Chocolate Factory, we won't attack you.

-Never!-answered Wonka.

Angrily, the Knids reacted and went back to their ships, while they were shouting that they would be back soon.

CHAPTER 4

The Knids went to prepare for a fight which would take place just a few days later. They carried all their bests weapons and studied the ground and making sure of what they could do.

Meanwhile, Charlie and Willy Wonka helped to create an army who could defeat the Knids. With all the money that the government gave them, they created new armament for the imminent war. Moreover, Charlie decided to call the kids who also won the golden ticket and whom he made a visit with to the Chocolate Factory: Augustus Gloop, Veruca Salt, Violet Beauregarde and Mike Teavee. However, none of them wanted to help Willy Wonka as he ashamed them.

When the time of the war came, Charlie and the rest went to hide themselves at the improved fortification, while the Knids flew through the dark night sky towards the White-House.

CHAPTER 5

When the Knids arrived at the White House, Charlie and his Army were waiting for them. It was noticeable that the Knids had a better army than the humans, as it was not their first war. Moreover, as Charlie's army was newcomer, they did not have any experience on shooting.

After one hour fighting, the Knids were the ones wining. They were stronger, and it did not matter to them if they lost a lot of them, the only important thing was to destroy the humanity.

Charlie and Willy Wonka were exhausted, they did not know what to do. Suddenly, Wonka made a decision: he would sacrifice himself, so that Charlie's army did not lose more lives.

Finally, Willy Wonka, holding a white flag, walk towards the Knids. But unluckily, they did not have any commiseration and, while he was coming to them, they killed Wonka.

CHAPTER 6

When Charlie saw what had just happened, he could not believe his eyes. He swore that he would make revenge for what the Knids did. He told his army to go to the Chocolate Factory and find a solution there.

They all arrived at the Factory, where the Oompa Loompas were waiting for them. Charlie explained them what had happened, and that they needed to improve their army in order to defeat the Knids.

Suddenly, the Oompa Loompas got an idea: they would create a chocolate dinosaur which could spit chocolate. Everybody agreed on that idea, and they started working on the dinosaur, as they had all the materials needed.

However, when half of the dinosaur was almost done, they ran out of chocolate. Luckily, the Oompa Loompas had a lot of experience making more chocolate, so in a few minutes they could continue with the dinosaur.

Now, they were prepared for the fight.

CHAPTER 7

As they finished the dinosaur, Charlie and his army went back to the fight. The Knids were winning, but they did not expect what was about to happen. As they were fighting, the chocolate dinosaur caught them by surprise appearing from other side.

The dinosaur started spitting chocolate to the Knids. But it was not enough for ending with them all.

Charlie noticed that whenever a sunbeam appeared, the dinosaur started to melt. Because of that, he decided to call the Knids' attention so to move them to the sun and make the dinosaur fully melt.

As the dinosaur started melting, al the Knids were stunk because of the melted chocolate. Finally, Charlie and his army won the war and defeated all the knid. Now everything looked normal, but who knows if all the Kinds were destroyed...
